Honduras Mission Trip 2024

In Honduras, my team and I prepared clothing, bath supplies, and food into bags to take up into the mountains.

We drove up into the mountains to the town of Santa Cruz, where we had a women's conference, men's conference and taught the kids about Praise. We fed the men, women, and children.

We drove even further into the mountains into an even smaller town called El Cerron. Where we taught the kids about thanksgiving, praise and Jesus. We were able to do crafts and games with the kids that they have never experienced before. They had never taken a photo before so we took polaroid pictures and gave them to the woman and children. We also had a women's conference where we gave the women necklaces (some never saw a necklace before and needed help putting them on which was an honor).

We drove back to El Cerron to do more crafts, games and teachings. Both days we fed them food. Before we left we gave them clothing, even bigger bags of uncooked food, clothes and bath supplies. One of my biggest takeaways, out of many, was from El Cerron. Before we left they gifted each and every one of us a tapestry that they started hand stitching a year before, when they found out we were coming. Even though they do not have much, they were the most grateful people I've ever met. The children were so well behaved, sharing everything we gave them.

We also painted one of our translators' mother houses that had never been painted before.
